CLIENT: TREASURE POINT DEVELOPMENT

Treasure Point is a residential development in Puerto Rico uniquely located adjacent the Cerro Gordo National Park and Preserve. This area is environmentally sensitive with an extraordinary shoreline geology and coastal ecology.

Treasure Point has been developed as a Traditional Neighborhood Development consists of condominiums and single family homes. The fine-grained master plan organizes these residential products into two districts with the high rise luxury condominiums on the north side offering panoramic ocean views. The single family development housing are clustered in towards the social center of the community, with pedestrian oriented streets and alleys, parks and placita or town square. LEUNG was responsible for developing the landscape design from concept to construction implementation. The landscape design included the community entrance, water feature, placita and other common areas of the community, providing this development a distinctive character and identity.
